My favorite has to be one magazine that saysBy Robert PizzoThis book was once an extremely valuable tool for working freelancers so it pains me to write this. I've personally mined gold from the listings over the years but, sadly, that's not the case anymore. Whoever is supposed to be updating these listings is asleep at the switch. As I go through it now I am feeling really ripped off as I find virtually half of the email addresses are no longer valid and bounce back. Some of the listings are so shamefully out of date that they list requirements for knowledge of programs that went out of business a decade ago. I think I even saw a Compuserve address somewhere in here!Also, many listings provide absolutely no contact info you can use. If I have to do all my own research why am I buying the book?Not only that but, "clients" that do not value art and graphic design need to be eliminated from the book. My favorite has to be one magazine that says, "We are unable to pay our contributors but we love to support freelancers." Hilarious! So, let me get that straight: they "support" freelancers by having them work for free. Nice. Seems the freelancers are the ones supporting them.0 of 0 people found the following review helpful.
